Introduction:

The seminar on qualitative research with Identify the Role of an Entrepreneur was held on March 20th, 2020 at JKKMMRF's Annai Sampoorani Ammal College of Pharmacy. The seminar was organized by the Department of Pharmacy, and a total of 350 students participated. The purpose of the seminar was to provide attendees with an introduction to the basics of qualitative research and to introduce them to the use of Identify the Role of an Entrepreneur software as a tool for analyzing and organizing qualitative data. At the end of the seminar, all attendees received a certificate of completion.

Objectives:

The main objectives of the seminar were to:

- Introduce attendees to the principles of identifies a commercial need in their community, crafts a business idea and takes the lead role to start their business.
- Provide an overview of the different types of qualitative data and how to collect and analyze them
- Introduce attendees to the use of Identify the Role of An Entrepreneur for organizing and analyzing qualitative data
- Provide attendees with the opportunity to practice using Identify the Role of an Entrepreneur through hands-on exercises

Participants:

The seminar was open to all students at JKKMMRF's Annai Sampoorani Ammal College of Pharmacy, and a total of 350 students participated. The attendees represented a range of academic disciplines within the field of pharmacy, including pharmacology, pharmaceutical chemistry, and pharmacy practice. Most of the attendees had some prior experience with qualitative research, but some were new to the field.

Format:

The seminar was structured as a combination of lectures, group discussions, and hands-on exercises. The lectures were led by an experienced researcher with expertise in qualitative research and Identify the Role of An Entrepreneur, and the hands-on exercises were led by a trained facilitator. The seminar was held over two full days, with breaks in between to allow attendees to rest and ask questions.

Content:

The seminar covered a range of topics related to qualitative research and the use of Identify the Role of An Entrepreneur. On the day, attendees learned about the different types of qualitative data, including interview transcripts, focus group transcripts, and observational field notes. They also learned about the different approaches to analyzing qualitative data, including coding, memoing, and categorizing, attendees learned how to use Identify the role of an Entrepreneur to organize and analyze their qualitative data, including importing data, coding text, and creating visualizations.

Evaluation:

At the end of the seminar, attendees were asked to complete a short evaluation form to provide feedback on the seminar. Overall, the evaluations were very positive, with most attendees rating the seminar as "excellent" or "good." Attendees commented that the lectures were clear and well-organized, and that the hands-on exercises were helpful in providing a practical understanding of Identify the Role of An Entrepreneur.

Conclusion:

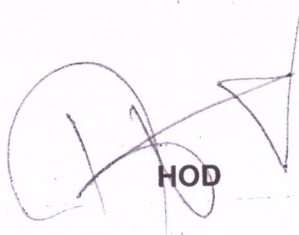

Overall, the seminar on qualitative research with Identify the Role of an Entrepreneur was a success. A total of 350 students participated, and all attendees received a certificate of completion. The positive feedback from attendees suggests that the seminar met its objectives and was well-received by the participants. The skills and knowledge gained from the workshop will be valuable to the students as they continue their studies and pursue careers in the field of pharmacy.

Recommendations:

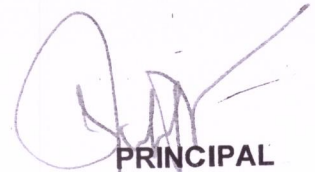

Based on the evaluations and feedback from attendees, we recommend offering similar seminar in the future to continue to build capacity in qualitative research and the use of IDENTIFY THE ROLE OF AN ENTREPRENEUR at JKKMMRF's Annai Sampoorani Ammal College of Pharmacy. It may also be helpful to consider offering more advanced seminar for those who have already completed the basic seminar and are looking to further develop their skills.

ABOUT THE TOPIC

IDENTIFY THE ROLE OF AN ENTERPRENUER

An entrepreneur is an individual who creates and grows a business through their creative ideas. Entrepreneurs play key roles besides generating income as they grow their businesses. An entrepreneur identifies a commercial need in their community, crafts a business idea and takes the lead role to start their business.

Types of Entrepreneur

Builder

Opportunist

Functions of an Entrepreneur

An entrepreneur frequently has to wear many hats. He has to perceive opportunity, plan, organize resources, and oversee production, marketing, and liaison with officials. Most importantly he has to innovate and bear risk.

Importance of Entrepreneurship:

Economic growth: The success of the products and services created and sold by entrepreneurs cascades to other businesses and markets.

Wealth generation: Entrepreneurs frequently target new markets and tap audiences outside the focus of established firms. This creates new sources of revenue and profits.
