On 21/12/21 and 22/12/21, a workshop on reference management using Mendeley was held at JKKMMRF's College of Pharmacy in the seminar hall. The workshop was attended by 300 students and aimed to provide an introduction to the Mendeley reference management software and its use in organizing and managing research literature.

The workshop began with an introduction to the concept of reference management and the benefits of using a software tool such as Mendeley. The facilitator demonstrated the various features of Mendeley, including the ability to import and organize references, create bibliographies, and collaborate with other researchers.

The workshop concluded with a discussion on best practices for using Mendeley and other reference management tools. The facilitator emphasized the importance of keeping research literature organized and easily accessible, and the role of reference management software in facilitating this process.

Overall, the workshop provided valuable insights and practical skills for using Mendeley and other reference management tools. The students who attended the workshop left with a better understanding of the features and benefits of reference management software and the skills needed to effectively use such tools in their research.

REFERENCE MANAGEMENT USING 'MENDELEY'

Mendeley is a reference management software tool that is used to organize and manage research references, documents, and citations. It is a useful tool for researchers, students, and professionals who need to keep track of a large number of references and citations, and who need to easily insert and format citations in their research papers, presentations, and other documents.

Some of the key features of Mendeley include:

1. Reference management: Mendeley allows users to import, organize, and manage references from a variety of sources, including online databases, PDF files, and personal collections. It includes tools for organizing references into folders, tags, and groups, and for searching and filtering references.
2. Citation and bibliography tools: Mendeley includes tools for inserting and formatting citations and bibliographies in a variety of styles, including APA, MLA, and Chicago. It also includes a word processor plug-in that allows users to insert citations directly into their documents.
3. Collaboration and sharing: Mendeley allows users to share references, documents, and annotations with others, and to collaborate on projects in real-time. It also includes tools for tracking changes and keeping a record of previous versions.
4. Research metrics: Mendeley includes a range of research metrics tools that allow users to track the impact of their research, including the number of citations and the H-index.

Mendeley is a useful tool for researchers and students who need to manage and organize their research references and citations. It is particularly useful for those who need to easily insert and format citations in their research papers and other documents.

Reference management is the process of organizing and managing the references or sources used in a research project. Mendeley is a software tool that can be used to assist with the organization and management of references in a research project.

On 21st and 22nd December 2021, a workshop on reference management using Mendeley was held in the seminar hall at JKKMMRF's College of Pharmacy. The workshop was designed to provide participants with an in-depth understanding of the principles and processes of managing references in a research project, as well as the features and techniques provided to effectively use Mendeley for this purpose.

The workshop was led by experienced experts in the field, who provided participants with a step-by-step guide to using Mendeley for reference management. Topics covered included:

- The importance of referencing in academic research.
- The different citation styles used in academic research.
- Importing and organizing references in Mendeley, including the use of tags and folders.
- Creating and formatting bibliographies and in-text citations using Mendeley.
- Creating a list of references on a research project using Mendeley's sharing and synchronization features.

Throughout the workshop, participants had the opportunity to work through practical exercises and case studies, allowing them to apply what they had learned and gain hands-on experience with using Mendeley for reference management.

Overall, the workshop on reference management using Mendeley provided participants with a valuable opportunity to learn about this important aspect of academic research and gain the skills and knowledge needed to effectively organize and manage references in their own research projects.
