Workshop on Ethics in health research

Background

As the emphasis on research in the field of health gains momentum, it is important to realize that research and technology development should be scientifically sound and addresses the needs of people in underprivileged circumstances and enhance equity in access to health care. Such research should not violate the ethical norms that are universally acceptable nor use human beings just as a means to achieving the research goals. This module addresses the issues that arise as a consequence of the need for scientific research in health that require human participation and the use of human beings as subjects in the process of such research. This course fulfills a felt need for research ethics training among researchers and research administrators in biomedical and public health research.

Objectives

This research ethics course proposes to help the participants to:

1. To recognize the various concepts of ethical issues in health research
2. To have knowledge of the existing guidelines for ethics in health research and
3. To identify and use the ethical principles for decision making

Topics Covered:

Understanding moral reasoning and Evolution and principles of bioethics Informed consent, Privacy and confidentiality, Integrity and Conflict of interest in Research Good Clinical Practice and Ethics, Ethics of Clinical trials and Standards of care Risk benefit analysis and Ethical Review Processes.

It is essential that all proposals on biomedical research involving human participants should be cleared by an appropriately constituted - Institutional Ethics Committee (IEC), Institutional Review Board (IRB), Ethics Review Board (ERB), Research Ethics Board (REB), Ensure Technical appropriateness. Roles & Responsibilities of Ethics Committee Ensure protection of the rights, safety and well being of the research participants, initial and continuing review of all scientific, ethical, medical and social aspects of research proposals objectively, timely and independently. The committee should ensure that universal ethical values and international scientific standards are followed in terms of local community values and customs. It should assist in the development and education of the research community responsive to local health care requirements.

Responsibilities of Members should be defined to ensure the scientific soundness of the proposed research (scientific review committee prior ratification).
